an agent that singles out and protects brain and central nervous system cells while also not protecting